Notice on an Action for Compensatory Damages Filed Against Toshiba

TOKYO— Toshiba Corporation (TOKYO: 6502) (the “Company”) hereby gives notice that an action for compensatory damages in relation to the accounting issue (“the Action”) has been filed against the Company, which yesterday received the complaint pertaining to the Action.

In addition, the Company also herewith gives notification, as in 2. below, on the status of the other actions for compensatory damages filed against the Company in Japan in relation to the accounting issue.

1. Outline of the Action

The Action against the Company was filed with the Tokyo District Court by seventy shareholders, foreign institutional investors and individuals, on April 3, 2017, seeking compensatory damages in the amount of 43,890,170,490 yen, on the grounds of damages incurred due to the Company’s inappropriate accounting. The Company was served with the complaint yesterday.

The Company will handle the matter appropriately after taking into account the plaintiffs’ assertions in the Action. Part of the impact of the Action was reflected in the outlook announced by the Company on May 15, 2017, “Notice on Outlook for FY2016 Business Results,” as the Company had received prior notification from some shareholders that the Action would be brought. Subsequently, the number of shareholders participating in the Action has increased, and the Company intends to respond by recording a provision for a reasonably estimable amount in its financial results for FY2016.

2. Status of the other actions for compensatory damages in Japan

As announced by the Company in its April 21, 2017 announcement, “Notice on Actions for Compensatory Damages Filed Against Toshiba,” in addition to the Action, other actions have been filed in Japan seeking compensatory damages in relation to the accounting issue. The outline of each of these actions is as described in the table attached below. As of today, other than the Action, the Company has been served with 25 complaints, including 21 complaints that were announced on April 21, 2017, and the total amount sought in these actions, including the Action, is approximately 108.4 billion yen.
