Notice on Media Coverage of Toshiba's Capital Reinforcement

TOKYO—NHK, the Japanese national broadcaster, reported on its web site on the morning of November 10 that Toshiba Corporation is considering a capital reinforcement of 600 billion yen.

As Toshiba stated in the materials for its November 9 announcement of second quarter business results, the company aims to recover its financial base by closing the sale of Toshiba Memory by the end of March 2018, and, in parallel, is also considering capital strategy options to respond to changing circumstances, but no decision on capital strategy options has been made as of today.

Toshiba will make a prompt disclosure when any decision is made.
