TOKYO – Since last night, there have been multiple press reports stating that Toshiba Corporation (Toshiba) plans to divide itself into three companies, and all three are expected to be listed. These are not based on any announcement made by Toshiba.

Toshiba is in the process of formulating its next mid-term plan to enhance corporate value, and a split, as stated in the press reports, is one potential strategic option. However, no definitive decisions have been made by Toshiba as of today. Toshiba will make an announcement if any decision is made that requires disclosure.
